Camp Four Echoes at Lake Coeur d'Alene is the Ideal Summer Camp for Girls
Girl Scout camp open to all girl grades 1-12

(Spokane, Wash−June 7, 2012): Summer camp often goes down as one of the most memorable and carefree childhood memories. For more than 74 years, young girls have been making summer camp memories at Girl Scouts' Camp Four Echoes at Lake Coeur d'Alene.

With more than one mile of waterfront, 220 acres of camp property and countless activities, Camp Four Echoes is the ideal place for girls of all ages to learn about everything from kayaking, bug identification and geocaching to water quality, nocturnal science and outdoor cooking.

"The experience is always memorable, whether you're a new or experienced (return) camper," said Jayn Courchaine, Camp Four Echoes camp director. "Some girls return for multiple years and sessions while, for some, this might be the first time away from home. Lifelong friendships are made at Camp Four Echoes. We hear favorite camp memories from women who attended camp decades ago and their memories remain strong and special. Going to Camp Four Echoes during this (Girl Scout) 2012 Centennial celebration year will definitely be a memory maker for the girls who attend camp this year."

Camp Four Echoes is owned and managed by the Girl Scouts Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho council. A focal point of the camp is a new $3.4 million lodge, which is the hub of activity during summer sessions and events throughout the year. The themed cabins, outdoor amphitheater, waterfront area and many outdoor and water activities provide an idyllic setting for girls to enjoy a complete camp experience.
